

It is in respecting and the embedding of Indigenous knowledges and values that Australian universities can grow their understeach, to conduct research and to work, striving to all cultures feel valued and respected, and where Indigenous Australian people, cultures, knowledges, experiences, and perspectives, form an integral part of our learning, teaching, research, and community engagement.

Reconciliation is entwined in our processes of strategic planning, and we commit to achieving 'real life' outcomes. We commit to implement, monitor, and evaluate the embedding of Indigenous value systems and knowledges into university structures, our learning and teaching and into our research. This includes embedding Indigenous knowledges into curriculum, and formal strategies that ensure that students take with them as graduates a strong foundational understanding of Indigenous values and knowledges. Griffith a benchmark university that holds social justice and truth telling at the very heart of everything we do.

At Griffith we are led by our values in creating a brighter future for all where everyone should be given the opportunity to make a positive difference to themselves and others. We acknowledge that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have maintained unique relationships to the land, sea, waterways, and the air above and around us over tens of thousands of years as the oldest continuous surviving culture in the world and we acknowledge Aboriginal Australians as Traditional Owners within our campuses.

Our passion and commitment to work with all staff, students, and external
